1. Definitions

It is important that staff, students and parents have a shared understanding of what bullying is, how it impacts on people and how bullying is responded to at The River School.

1.1. National Definition of Bullying for Australian Schools (© July 2021 Bullying No Way!)

Bullying is an ongoing and deliberate misuse of power in relationships through repeated verbal, physical and/or social behaviour that intends to cause physical, social and/or psychological harm. It can involve an individual or a group misusing their power, or perceived power over one or more persons who feel unable to stop it from happening.

Bullying can happen in person or online, via various digital platforms and devices and it can be obvious (overt) or hidden (covert). Bullying behaviour is repeated, or has the potential to be repeated, over time (for example, through sharing of digital records).

Bullying of any form or for any reason can have immediate, medium and long-term effects on those involved, including bystanders. Single incidents and conflict or fights between equals, whether in person or online, are not defined as bullying.

There are three types of bullying behaviour:

- Verbal bullying which includes name calling or insulting someone about physical characteristics such as their weight or height, or other attributes including race, sexuality, culture, or religion
- Physical bullying which includes hitting or otherwise hurting someone, shoving or intimidating another person, or damaging or stealing their belongings
- Social bullying which includes consistently excluding another person or sharing information or images that will have a harmful effect on the other person

If any of these behaviours occur only once or are part of a conflict between equals (no matter how inappropriate) they are not bullying. The behaviours alone don't define bullying.

Verbal, physical and social bullying can occur in person or online, directly or indirectly, overtly or covertly.

Note: Bullying can happen in person or online settings. Online bullying is sometimes called cyberbullying

1.2. What Bullying is not (© 2020 Bullying No Way!)

Behaviours that do not constitute bullying include:

- mutual arguments and disagreements where there is no power imbalance
- not liking someone or a single act of social rejection
- one-off acts of meanness or spite
- isolated incidents of aggression, intimidation or violence.

However, these conflicts still need to be addressed and resolved — refer to The River School Student Behaviour Management Policy

4. Responses to Bullying and Intervention Strategies

The River School uses a Restorative Practice approach to conflict resolution and endorses The Bullying. No Way! website for Australian schools (managed by the Safe and Supportive School Communities Working Group) effective school responses to bullying incidents:

- Solution-focused
- Relationship-based
- At the school level, the class level, the student level, and
- Restorative Community Conference for serious incidents – using trained personal
- Based on strong links between the School and parents.

5. Reporting and Monitoring Bullying

Bullying is viewed as a major breach of the School rules and behavioural expectations and therefore follow up action will align with our School Behaviour Management Policy and Framework. The School's immediate response to any incidents of bullying will involve a member of staff dealing with the problem on the spot, in order to defuse the immediate conflict. Once the immediate issues have been dealt with, the following steps will be taken:

5.1. Identification

A student, parent or staff member reports bullying incidents/problem to a teacher who notifies the Principal or Deputy Principal.

5.2. Initial interview

The Principal, Deputy or nominated teacher interviews the bullied student and perpetrator separately and records the details of the incident in writing. If both parties agree to meet together, the Interviewer, using Restorative Practice dialogue (see Behaviour Management Policy), discusses the issues surrounding the particular incident. They then work with the students to devise strategies for conflict resolution. The interviewer supports students to reach a position where both parties are satisfied with the outcome; i.e. the bullied student feels safe and supported and the perpetrator is prepared to stop the bullying behaviour. The bullied student understands what support is available for them and that any further bullying must be reported immediately.

The strategy at this stage is not to apportion blame, or to punish; but to support the 'harmed' and make the perpetrator aware of School policies, taking responsibility for their behaviour and of the consequences if the bullying behaviour does not stop.

5.3. Follow-up

Follow up support is provided in the form of formal and informal check-ins, increased awareness and monitoring of student interactions in the playground and classroom. Notifying all teachers of students involved and being proactive in assisting the cessation of the bullying behaviours through revisiting activities to remind and teach students how to maintain positive relationships and repair relationships in a kind and compassionate manner.

5.4. Repeated Bullying

If the incident or similar bullying behaviour is repeated or the problem continues - both parties will be interviewed separately by the Principal or Deputy. Following individual meetings, the 'harmed' and perpetrator may meet together with the Principal or Deputy, if the 'harmed' feels safe enough to do so, and the perpetrator agrees to engage in restorative dialogue designed to make them aware of the feelings of the other person and the effects their bullying behaviour is having, and makes suggestions of strategies for the resolution of the conflict.

Other students may be interviewed to provide supporting evidence if deemed appropriate and necessary.

The Principal or Deputy documents all interviews and notifies both sets of parents explaining the situation, outlining the strategies and consequences that have been determined.

If a solution to a particular problem is not found, the School may consider the use of an outside person, such as a trained mediator, to assist in reaching a resolution.

5.5. Reinforce (above), employ sanctions

If the agreed strategies and consequences do not stop the bullying, sanctions may be imposed. These could include, but are not confined to:

- Official warning to cease bullying behaviour
- Implementing a Behaviour Support Plan (joint agreement with student, parents & school)
- Exclusion from certain areas of the school premises
- Conditions put in place during play breaks
- Internal Suspension

- External Suspension (1 – 5 days)
- Exclusion for a period of time to be determined (up to 12 months)
- Permanent exclusion

Note: If bullying amounts to harm as referred to in the school's Child Protection Policy then the matter must be dealt with under the Child Protection Policy.

An important consideration for schools, teachers, parents and students is that overcoming bullying is neither simple nor quick. Schools need to constantly reinforce the fact that bullying is not acceptable and to remind students how to counteract bullying, as well as offering programs to lift self-esteem and resilience; students need to be made aware of their responsibilities not to bully and not to condone bullying by being silent bystanders; and parents need to be confident to approach the school with their concerns, and encouraged to work with schools in a non-blame situation so that their children are protected.

6. Cyber-Bullying

Cyber bullying is causing harm via modern technologies such as the Internet and other forms of social media, and through the use of smart phones and other mobile devices.<sup>1</sup>

Cyber bullying can be particularly damaging because of the capacity it has to humiliate, hurt and harm a person in front of a huge "audience" and the bully can remain anonymous.

A dangerous feature of cyber bullying is that it can be done quickly and easily. On an impulse, a person can create emotional havoc for another and do so before the voice of reason hints at the inappropriateness of the action.

A further problem with cyber bullying is that the bully is often unaware of the extent of the harm they are causing because cyber bullying seldom occurs face-to-face. The feedback is muted by distance so that the bully is protected from an understanding of the awfulness of their behaviour.

Cyber bullying can be difficult for adults, who may not be as technologically savvy as their children, to detect and monitor. It is often outside the reach of schools as it happens on home computers or via mobile phones.

The School's Bullying Prevention Policy is equally applicable when using technology. Some examples of cyber-bullying, which are unacceptable at any time, whether at or away from School are listed below. In extreme cases, this kind of bullying may be referred to the Police.

- Sending a text message to another student containing threats, swearing or insults or inciting anti-social behaviour.
- Sending an email containing a destructive gossip / rumours about another student
- Creating a social media profile impersonating another student
- Sending / posting / uploading picture/s or video of students or teachers at School without their consent
- Threatening or swearing at an opponent via online games

7. Protecting Young People from Cyber-Bullying

As for other forms of bullying, there is no one approach that will always work for cyber-bullying. Schools need to educate students and families about cyber-bullying and about a range of Internet safety approaches to provide the best overall protection against cyber-bullying. Schools might supply parents with the following advice:

- For younger children parents might consider the use of filters, labels and safe zones so they can restrict the sites their child can access or the materials they can receive (see the CyberSmart site at <https://esafety.gov.au/> for advice about filters and other ways to restrict access to dangerous materials).
- Parents should consider keeping the computer in a public area of the house, such as the family room, so they can see what sites are being accessed and the type of messages their child is receiving.
- For all young people, parents should be advised to talk to their children about the ways they can protect themselves when using information technologies.

For example:

- To be careful who they give their telephone number to or their online handle;
- Never give out or share passwords and personal information numbers (PINS);
- Don't believe everything you read online – just because someone tells you they are fifteen, it doesn't mean they are telling the truth;
- Never send a message to others when you are angry. Remind them that what they post becomes available in cyberspace and cannot be taken back;
- Never open a message from someone they don't know;
- Be polite in all online or text message dealings; and
- Never arrange to meet someone they have met online unless they take their parents or (for older children) a trusted friend with them.

If a child reports he/she is being bullied on-line parents should advise them:

- Not to respond to cyber-bullying messages as this is only likely to encourage the bully. Bullies want them to respond;
- To report the bullying to parents and to their teachers;
- Not to erase or delete messages from cyber-bullies even if they really don't want anyone else to see what is written – these messages may reveal clues about who has written them;
- Never be ashamed to tell someone if they receive a frightening message. It is important that they understand that it's not their fault; and
- To report that they have received a bullying message to their ISP (Internet Service Provider). If the message is forwarded to the provider, it may be able to trace the sender.

8. The Role of the School with Cyber-Bullying

Because cyber-bullying often occurs outside of school it is difficult for schools to control. In most cases, however, cyber-bullying should be treated similarly to other forms of bullying. The most important thing schools can do is to educate students about cyber-bullying and the dangers online and talk about inappropriate online behaviour in the context of Section 6 of this policy and the School's Behaviour Management Policy.

The Australian Government Online Safety site gives the following advice to young people about dangers online:

- Set your online profile to private or 'friends only'
- Have a different password for each social networking site so that if one password is stolen, not all of your accounts will be at risk
- Think before you post – expect that people other than your friends can see the information you post online. Remember that something sent electronically can never be entirely removed.
- Don't post information that would make you or your family vulnerable – such as your date of birth, address, information about your daily routine, holiday plans, or your children's school
- Regularly check your privacy and security settings on your social networking profile, never give away your account details, and regularly update your computer security software
- Use strong passwords and change them regularly – the personal information you put in your social networking profile may be used by scammers to guess your passwords
- Don't share your personal information in an email, SMS or on a social networking site with people you don't know and trust
- Don't accept a friend request or follow a request from a stranger – the best way to keep scammers out of your life is to never let them in.
- Always be alert when on the Internet. While there are some excellent sites to visit there are also some bad ones like pornography, animal cruelty and hate sites.
- If something appears on your screen that disturbs you, tell your friends, a teacher or parent
- Remember, you will not get into any trouble by letting people know what you have stumbled across.
- Not everything you read on the Internet is true. Be smart and make decisions for yourself on what you think is right and wrong.
- Be careful downloading free games or files. People can trick you into clicking on a link that sends you to an unsafe zone or makes your computer download a virus.
- Only give your mobile phone number to your family and friends and if you start getting upsetting or annoying text messages, tell a teacher or parent.
- Always seek help from adults or friends. Parents might not know as much about the Internet as you, but they know about life and together you can work out any problem that you might encounter when online.
